VISION

To build a just, humane, secular, democratic and inclusive Indian society wherein the poor and marginalized communities cherish equality, dignity, freedom, justice, peace and harmony.

MISSION

To engage in social transformation through socially relevant research, training, publication and advocacy works aimed at integral development of the marginalized communities, particularly the Dalits, Adivasis/ Tribals, women, minorities, unorganized and landless labourers in partnership with academicians and ecological movements nationally and internationally.

FROM THE DESK OF THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The academic year 2022-23 marked 72 years of the establishment of Indian Social Institute by Fr. Jerome D'Souza SJ. During the last more than seven decades, the Institute has been engaged in the process of nation-building through its engagements in socially relevant research, training, publication and advocacy for marginalized sections of society in India. It has also been responding to the socio-economic challenges faced by the country through collaboration and networking with a large number of academicians, social activists, people's movements, human rights groups, civil society organizations and ecological movements throughout India and the world.

After two years of disruption caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, the year 2022-23 was a rather comfortable year of revival and renewal. The Institute adopted the Conference Apostolic Preference Plan for the years 2022-2025 and a Five Year Academic Plan for the years 2023-2028 in order to streamline its research, publication, legal education and peace building activities in the years ahead.

Research

Indian Social Institute has continued its endeavour to engage in relevant and credible research. During the year 2022-23, the Institute completed three projects by Ram Dayal Munda Tribal Research Institute (TRI) Ranchi, Government of Jharkhand. They are (1) "Customary Laws and Practices: A Comparative Study of Five Major Tribes of Jharkhand", (2) "A Historical Study of Tribal Chiefdoms of Jharkhand: Kherwar of Ramgarh, Munda of Bundu, Bhumij of Jungle Mahal, Nagwansi of Ranchi, Santhal of Hazaribagh & Others" and (3) "Value Chain analysis of four Minor Forest Products (Tamarind, Sal seed, Lac, Chiraunji)". Besides, the Institute also completed the study titled "Exploring the Nature and Extent of Child Labour in Tea Gardens in Nagaon District of Assam". Further, the Institute completed two studies related to the impact of COVID-19, namely (1) "Impact of COVID-19 in Rural India: A Cross-Sectional Study from 12 States" and (2) "Education, the Digital Divide and COVID-19 in Rural India" in collaboration with other Jesuit organisations. Finally, the project "Disparities in Access to Education in the Aspirational Districts in Odisha, Jharkhand and Odisha" was completed and the final report submitted to the National Human Rights Commission (NHRC).

Being part of the global study on "Biodiversity Conservation and the Health and Wellbeing of Indigenous Peoples" led by the University of Alberta, Canada, the Institute will be engaged in research related to indigenous peoples in India in the coming year. In addition, the Institute continues its archival research on the Journal of Anthropological Society of Bombay 1886-1936 and the publication of books emerging from it.

Dr. Denzil Fernandes SJ

1.1 INTRODUCTION

Indian Social Institute has been engaged in credible research for generating knowledge, promoting publications, imparting training and facilitating policy advocacy in partnership with academicians, policy makers, legal fraternity, social activist networks, people's movements, and other civil society organisations nationally and internationally. The Research Department engaged in various kinds of research that focused on marginalized sections of society. During the academic year 2022-23, we successfully completed seven research studies. Four of the studies were awarded to the Institute by Government agencies, three were from Dr. Ram Dayal Munda Tribal Welfare Research Institute, Government of Jharkhand, and one study from the National Human Rights Commission. One study was funded by DKA Austria, while two studies related to the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the people of India were self-financed. Our ongoing research endeavours include a global project on bio-diversity and archival research.

1.2 RESEARCH PROJECTS

1.2.1 Research Projects Completed

a. A Historical Study of Tribal Chiefdoms of Jharkhand: Munda of Bundu, Kherwar of Ramgarh, Santal of Hazaribagh, Bhumij of Jungle Mahal, Nagwansi of Ranchi and Others.

The study was conducted in the geographical regions of the Mundas of Bundu, Kherwars of Ramgarh, Santals of Hazaribagh, Bhumij of Jungle Mahal and Midnapur and Nagwansis of Ranchi. The study was conducted using ethnographic and historical method which aimed at the history of tribal Chiefdoms, their socio-cultural institutions, political organizations like the Parha, Pargana, Manki-Munda systems and their functions and their relevance today. The study also explored how the tribal socio-political organisation and self-rule became instrumental in their pursuit of political aspiration for the formation of the state called 'Jharkhand.' The study also helps to revive the socio-cultural values and practices in the tribal communities and to reassert for revival and restoration of people-friendly governance. This study was funded by Dr Ram Dayal Munda Tribal Welfare Research Institute, Government of Jharkhand.

b. Study of Customary Laws, Social and Religious Practices of Five Major Scheduled Tribes of Jharkhand: A Comparative Analysis

This research study was done on five major tribals living in Jharkhand. It made significant discoveries about the customs of five major tribals, namely Santhal, Oraon, Munda, Ho and Kharia. In these significant discoveries, different administrative systems and customs still exist in different tribal communities living in the state in which there is some degree of similarity.

Nevertheless, in some communities, the earlier practices are on the verge of extinction. For example, Munda communities' practice of covering graves with stones does not exist anymore. In Santal communities, carrying dead bodies has now taken a different form. The Khadia community, in case of unnatural death, now cremate the body instead of burying it far away. During the research study, it was observed that a purification process is adopted in all communities after birth, marriage and death. There is some variation in tribal festivals. However, most festivals are determined according to the crops and even now the tribals are connected with nature. This study was funded by Dr Ram Dayal Munda Tribal Welfare Research Institute, Government of Jharkhand.

c. Value Chain Analysis of Four Minor Forest Products (Tamarind, Sal Seed, Chironji, and Lac)

The state of Jharkhand is a region having tropical climate with a substantial contribution of non-timber forest products (NTFPs) to the livelihoods of the people. The objective was to study the value chain of MFPs and analyse the benefits derived from the government schemes. The research covered eight districts and obtained information from the local people about four minor forest products. In this regard, qualitative data was collected from the local people to understand how they create value chain processes in the four minor forest products and what kind of technology they use for the value chain process. The study observed that due to ineffective co-operative societies, the income of gatherers involved in MFPs is very low. Most benefits of value addition are taken by the middlemen, merchants, and retailers. Therefore, the study suggests a proactive action to be taken by the agencies involved in NTFP trade. This study was funded by Dr Ram Dayal Munda Tribal Welfare Research Institute, Government of Jharkhand.

d. "The Nature and Extent of Child Labour in the Tea Gardens of Nagaon, district of Assam",

The project was undertaken due to the prevalence of child labour in the Nagaon district. Major findings in the report state that nearly 4,365 children aged between 6-18 years are engaged in tea garden work. One common conclusion to this issue is illiteracy. Observations from the fact-findings highlighted: Child marriage, alcohol consumption, lack of education of the children, and lack of awareness of the need for girl child education as core issues. The study suggests proper educational management, vigilance on the part of government committees on child labour, and awareness of the effects of early marriage, health, and hygiene. Despite certain constraints during the process, the research resulted in various findings that could be considered by civil society and government officials. The project was funded by DKA Austria.

e. Impact of COVID-19 in Rural India: A cross sectional study from 12 states

The Jesuit Collective India, consisting of Conference Development Office (CDO), Indian Social Institute, Delhi (ISI_Delhi) and Lok Manch (People's Forum) completed the research study on the impact of COVID-19 in rural India, from the perspective of marginalized communities like the Dalits, Adivasis, women and children. It focused on areas like livelihood, children's education, health and social security schemes. The research study was carried out in 12 states, covering 474 villages in 46 districts, from June 2021- January 2022. A fact sheet was released at a webinar on 21st June 2022 and the final report was published in March 2023.

f. Education, Digital Divide and Covid-19 in India

The objective of the study was to find out the digital divide existing in rural India. The study was both qualitative and quantitative in nature. For this, semi-structured interview schedules were administered to parents, students and teachers management, government officials, and focused Group discussions with the stakeholders. This study was done in six states of India with the help of Jesuit school teachers through Kobo Collect App. The teachers were trained in Kobo Collect App to collect data. The results showed a huge digital divide in rural areas because of poverty leading to poor accessibility of digital devices, poor electricity connection, and network connectivity.

g. Disparity in Access to Education in Aspirational Districts in Odisha, Jharkhand and Chhattisgarh

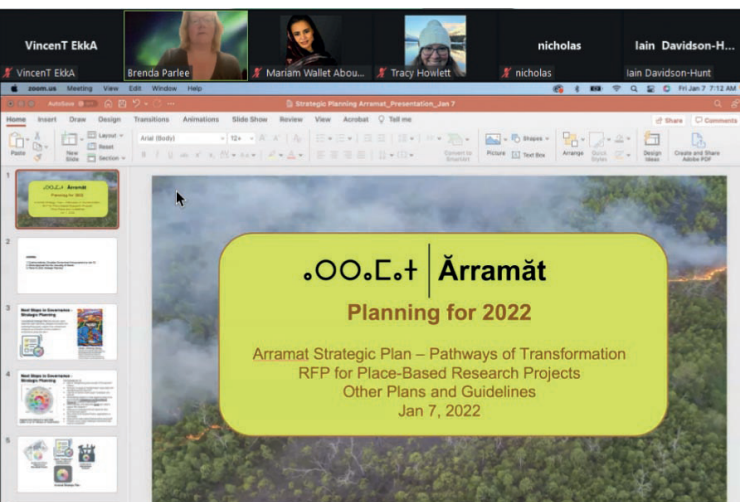

The objective of the research was to assess the implementation of the current educational initiatives and programmes in the six Aspirational Districts of Kandhamal and Kalahandi (Odisha), Lohardaga and Chatra (Jharkhand), and Kanker and Korba (Chhattisgarh). The study was qualitative and quantitative, with semi-structured interviews for parents, students and teachers and focused Group discussions with the stakeholders. The sample consisted of 930 parents, 932 students, 36 schools from 36 villages from six aspirational districts of Odisha, Jharkhand and Chhattisgarh. The findings of the study showed that there is a large number of socio-economically disadvantaged groups existing in India. As a result, there is a disparity in access to education with respect to region, gender, and location. This research was funded by the National Human Rights Commission.

1.2.2 On-going Research Projects

a. Arramat Research- Biodiversity Conservation: Health and Wellbeing of the Indigenous Peoples.

This study is a place-based research, a joint venture for global research that includes 26 countries. The Faculty of the University of Alberta, Canada, are the lead researchers to coordinate the study. The study aims at interdisciplinary approach where the indigenous scholars from different universities of India are collaborating in planning and implementation of the study in India. The Indian team of researchers aim to study biodiversity conservation on two pathways: (1) Biodiversity Conservation: Food Sustainability, Health and Wellbeing; and (2) Biodiversity Conservation and its Interface with Language, Culture and Wellbeing.

The place-based research study is stretched from 2021 to 2027 into three phases, namely Capacity Building, Indigenous-Led Place-Based Research and Policy Transformation.

b. Archival Research

This is an ongoing part of the project undertaken at the Centre for Culture and Development, Vadodara to study the contribution of the Anthropological Society of Bombay and its Journal commenced in 1886 which lasted till 1936. It contains thick ethnography written by anthropologists, administrators, both Indian and non-Indian. It provides a view of anthropology that was different from the one provided by the colonial government institutions, such as the Ethnographic Survey of India (later renamed as Anthropological Survey of India) and the Census of India.

It has studies also on countries other than India, and on tribals, non-tribals and religions. The aim is to bring out a series of books comprising collections of essays on various themes taken from this Journal. By re-issuing them we hope to help craft a more comprehensive view of Indian anthropology at its formative period and thereby its society and culture.

Editors, Professors A.M.Shah and Lancy Lobo have brought out the following volumes at the Centre for Culture and Development, Vadodara (Gujarat):

1. Anthropological Explorations in South and South- East Asia, 1886-1936, Delhi: Primus Publications, 2021.
2. An Ethnography of the Parsees of India 1886-1936, Delhi: Routledge, 2022.
3. Indian Anthropology: Anthropological Discourse in Bombay, 1886-1936, Delhi: Routledge India, 2022.

Editors, Professors Subhadra Mitra Channa and Lancy Lobo have brought out the following volumes at the Indian Social Institute, New Delhi:

4. Religious Pluralism in India: Ethnographic and Philosophic Evidence, 1886-1936 Delhi: Routledge, 2023.

8.2 Department of Publication

The Department of Publication (DP) has been a hub for information and knowledge dissemination. Publication was envisaged to publish books, documents, compendiums etc. by various departments of the institute as well as to provide space to likeminded thinkers, academicians and activists to disseminate relevant information and knowledge pertaining to social issues in India and abroad. By publishing such wealth of materials at an affordable cost, it is hoped that the institute could generate awareness among the masses and thinkers paving way for advocacy and policy interventions in favour of the priority communities of the institute. The Department of Publication in the recent past has been networking with authors, editors and publishers to jointly publish books and monographs at an affordable price and also make them available to those who are engaged in social transformation.

The Department takes all efforts to disseminate and promote the publication of books by making use of our book catalogue, social media and the portal (www.isidelhi.org.in) of the institute to advertise our publication.

During the year 2022-2023, the department participated in the following major book fairs:

1. National Patna Book fair Gandhi Maidan
2. New Delhi World Book Fair, Pragati Maidan, New Delhi
3. College book Fairs- Aryabhata and Maharaja Agrasen College, Delhi University

This had been a great time to interact with the publishers, readers, buyers and booksellers in the book fairs. Major publishing houses come under the same roof to put up their books display and exhibit after a gap of three years due to Covid-19 pandemic. Since the Covid-19 pandemic situation improved, books lovers were excited because whatever books they wanted that was available under one roof. During these book fairs, thousands of people visited our stall and appreciated the subjects we choose for publication. Our legal education series both in English and Hindi was very much appreciated by all those visited. The Department also makes a point to display the publication at various workshops and seminars in Delhi. We interacted directly with the visitors coming to our department and told them about our publication on general books, Legal Education Series and journals.

Now-a-day many customers had made payments through digital transactions (phonePe, G-pay Paytm) which helped us to decrease payment processing errors, saved our time and we received payment direct to the account without any delay. Some of the subscribers we do face problems who do not send their payment details. Therefore, we are unable to give them service immediately.

Subalterns is a quarterly news bulletin of the institute, published and freely distributed by the institute to share with its partners, like-minded organizations and well-wishers about the various engagements of the institute. We have been sharing news

A Brief History:

The Indian Social Institute was founded as a center for research, that articulates an ideology to contribute to the task of social transformation for inclusive growth and development of all sections of society. At the time of founding of the Institute, the then Superior General of the Society of Jesus stated “The Institute should be founded for the serious study of the Indian social situation in all its aspects”. Adhering to this mandate the Institute has been ever in search of new ways of engaging in social transformation according to the signs of the times.

The Institute began its journey as ‘Indian Institute of Social Order’ in January 1951 in Pune in response to the challenges of nation-building and emerging new social order in the post-independent era. In 1958, the Institute was registered in Pune as Indian Social Institute realizing the importance of being present in the national political capital, in 1961 the Institute was shifted to New Delhi and a new entity was registered under Xavier Institute of Social Order however, later in 1969 the Institute was registered as ‘Indian Social Institute’.

In the first decade, till 1960s, the focus was on spreading social doctrine of the Church; in the following decade the Institute expanded its scope to accompany NGOs and focused on training, thus giving birth to Indian Social Institute, Bangalore. The third decade was marked with sensitivity to women’s issues and establishment of Mobile Orientation Team (MOT). In the 80s, the fourth decade, it made a definitive choice to align with people’s movements and accompany them. As the government opened itself in 1989 to Thatcher-Reagan neo-liberal philosophy the Institute responded to the challenges of liberalization, privatization and globalization (LPG). In the same decade the Institute adopted rights-based perspective as a cross-cutting subject permeating all the endeavors of the Institute which continues till today. In the new millennium, expanding civil society space and advocacy works have assumed greater significance aimed at policy changes. The Institute enjoys the status of an NGO with special consultation status with the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations.

All through these years the Institute has enjoyed great credibility among the academicians, activists, students, and marginalized communities through varied interventions like, action-based research, publications, capacity building programs, and policy interventions through advocacy works. It has also provided space for like-minded persons and organizations to come together, reflect and respond with appropriate strategies. During this long journey many persons have contributed to the nurturing of its growth and also have taken shelter under the shades of its wings. The management and staff of the Institute earnestly hope that the Institute will grow further in the years to come to spread its fragrance far and wide.

Vision:

To build a just, humane, secular, democratic and inclusive Indian society wherein the poor and marginalized communities cherish equality, dignity, freedom, justice, peace and harmony.

Mission:

To engage in social transformation through socially relevant research, training, publication and advocacy works aimed at integral development of the marginalized communities, particularly the Dalits, Adivasis/Tribals, women, minorities, unorganized and landless laborers' in partnership with academicians, people's movements, human rights organizations and ecological movements nationally and internationally.

Approach:

The approach is both pedagogic and programmatic. It is pedagogic in the sense that our actions are aimed at creating critical consciousness, through action-reflection process, and eventually structural change in the system. It is programmatic in the sense that it is through different and concrete programs that we try to achieve this structural change, knowing that, "For a successful revolution (transformation) it is not enough that there is discontent. What is required is a profound and thorough conviction of the justice, necessity and importance of political and social rights" (B. R. Ambedkar), and having the conviction that, "A small body of determined spirits fired by an unquenchable faith in their mission can alter the course of history" (Mahatma Gandhi).

Strategies

1. Action Research:

Over the years, there has been a concerted effort to combine activism and academic research, taking cognizance of the prevailing tension and conflict at many levels. This effort has brought activists and academicians together to promote substantive research, combined with meaningful activism, trying to bridge the gap between theory and practice. To effectively engage in research and expand knowledge base and analytical perspectives, the Institute collaborates with universities, academicians, research scholars from different disciplines and activists. Every research is planned to be taken to its logical end resulting in capacity building, publication and advocacy works.

2. Capacity Building:

Years of experience have enabled the Institute to engage in trainings, workshops and seminars as an integral part of its strategy, largely as outcome of researches of the institution. On specialized themes, issues and developmental concepts the Institute also organizes capacity building programmes. Each department is engaged in a focused and systematic manner capacity building of the priority groups at various levels, including issues related to policy interventions. To progressively realize alliance of the marginalized inter-departmental capacity building programmes are planned and implemented. The Department of Human Rights and Law promotes legal literacy among the NGOs, leaders of people's movements and priority communities with training and legal series booklets in English and Hindi. Capacity building of urban poor was recently added as a new interventional space of the Institute. To impart social research skills and techniques the Institute conducts a course on Research Methodology as part of its core activity every year.

3. Advocacy:

Networking, campaign and advocacy are part of the modus operandi of the Institute, to protect, promote and progressively realize the human rights of the marginalized and vulnerable communities through interventional mechanisms. The Institute joins hands with grassroots organizations, people's movements, NGOs, advocates, networks, civil society organizations and national and international organizations in advocating people's rights to live a humane and dignified life. In order to intervene at the systems level and to exert pressure on the corridors of power, the Institute is in live contact with bureaucrats, government officials, decision-makers, elected representatives, ministers and national commissions and institutions.

4. Publication:

The primary responsibility of the Publication Department is to publish books, reports, documents and compendiums prepared by the staff of the Institute and by others who write on themes compatible with the objectives of the Institute at an affordable cost and makes them available for the non-profit sector and civil society organizations. The Institute to its credit disseminates three journals: Social Action as a quarterly journal and Legal News and Views and Hashiye ki Awaz as monthly magazines. All journals and magazines have ISSN code. Subalterns are a quarterly news bulletin of the Institute where current affairs are reflected from the perspective of the marginalized, along with ongoing engagements of the departments and news about the Institute. All these journals, magazines and newsletter are designed and marketed by the Publication Department.

5. Documentation and Library:

With the sudden surge of Information and Communication Technology (ICT), apart from maintaining a well catalogued library, this department gathers and disseminates information/data through documentation, pertaining to the priority communities through print and electronic media. It has also started a Human Rights News Bulletin, which is flashed to hundreds of recipients. A number of research scholars, activists, university students and administrators visit our library and some are members of the library too. The library has been computerized and automated to make it user-friendly.□
